

A report on the work of the IMS Journal

June Edition

Published 06/07/2026

Written by matcha_tea, editor-in-chief

Contents

Purpose.....	2
Freedom of Information from the IMS Journal department.....	2
Completed work.....	3
Planned work	3

Purpose

This document is written on a monthly basis to ensure accountability in the editor-in-chief by being transparent about the work done and planned projects to maintain a professional and efficient department of the IMS.

It is important that members of the Institute understand the vital work the journal does every month to deliver important information and publications to the broader public, increasing visibility of the grater project of the IMS.

This first edition will describe how members of the IMS can provide feedback and scrutinise the journal's staff to a more detailed degree if any questions remain unanswered, or if they want to inquire about the department's capacity to uphold the academic rigor of the IMS.

This document will outline the work the journal has completed within this month, and what it plans to do in the next month.

For future editions, another section will be included to review how much of the "to-do list" was completed.

Freedom of Information from the IMS Journal department

Henceforth, members of the IMS will be able to request for any information under the following criteria, otherwise it will be rejected:

- Requested information must be held by the Journal department
- The submitted request must be specific and not excessively broad
- The request asks for information that is not considered private

If you would like to submit an FoI request, please DM the editor-in-chief, matcha_tea (username matcha._tea) directly. Outline the information you would like to receive and any supplemental information that can help us locate it.

I hope that this will allow members to know about the department's way of operation to ensure transparency and accountability if things fall short of expectations.

Completed work

- Published "A short rant about Minecraft YouTube" by matcha_tea
IMSC: S-MA-4
- Published "The Reactionary Nature of Popular Answers to the Two Week Phase" by Harlow
IMSC: S-HW-1
- Published "Two Teams, Two Theories of Power" by Rev
IMSC: C-RV-2
- Edited and reviewed "Anarchy Without Ruin: Minecraft Bloodlines as a Case Study in Effective Server Design" by Miimuu
This was published in July, but work commenced and completed in June
IMSC: S-MU-1
- Conducted two interviews: Llama Amongus interviewed SaltCommander, and matcha_tea interviewed S_ALZERO
An article has been planned to review both interviews
- Created the IMS Journal index
This is available for public use at <https://imsresearch.github.io/journal/index>

Planned work

- An article to review the answers of both interviewees as mentioned above
- A request to write a Substack article about the Systems Experiment by Harlow has been approved
- The editor-in-chief is considering the possibility of running elections for the post
A review of this plan will be in order after some feedback on the increased transparency of the department
- A weekly survey on IMS members' Minecraft playing habits is planned
The data collected will be available for public use